requirements		(non-statutory)
Endings which	Not many common words end like this.	vicious, precious, conscious, sound like /∫əs/	If the root word ends in –ce , the /ʃ/ sound is	delicious, malicious, suspicious spelt –cious or –	usually spelt as c – e.g. vice – vicious, grace –	ambitious, cautious, fictitious, tious	gracious, space – spacious, malice – malicious.	infectious, nutritious 1 1	Exception: anxious.
Endings which	-cial is common after a vowel letter and -tial	official, special, artificial, partial,
sound like /∫əl/	after a consonant letter, but there are some	confidential, essential exceptions.
	Exceptions: initial, financial, commercial, provincial (the spelling of the last three is clearly related to finance , commerce and province).
Words ending in –	Use –ant and –ance/–ancy if there is a related	observant, observance, ant,	word with a /æ/ or /eI/ sound in the right	(observ a tion), expectant
–ance/–ancy,	position; –ation endings are often a clue.	(expect a tion), hesitant,
–ent,		hesitancy (hesit a tion), tolerant,
–ence/–ency		tolerance (toler a tion), substance (subst a ntial)
	Use –ent and –ence/–ency after soft c (/s/	innocent, innocence, decent,

Words ending in –	The -able/-ably endings are far more	adorable/adorably (adoration),

	If the -able ending is added to a word ending in –ce or –ge, the e after the c or g must be kept as those letters would otherwise have their 'hard' sounds (as in cap and gap ) before the a of the –able ending.	dependable, comfortable,
	The -able ending is usually but not always	understandable, reasonable, used if a complete root word can be heard	enjoyable, reliable before it, even if there is no related word ending in –ation . The first five examples opposite are obvious; in reliable , the complete word rely is heard, but the y changes to i in accordance with the rule.	nassible/passibly
	The –ible ending is common if a complete	possible/possibly, horrible/horribly, root word can't be heard before it but it also	terrible/terribly, visible/visibly, sometimes occurs when a complete word can	incredible/incredibly,
	be heard (e.g. sensible ).	sensible/sensibly Adding suffixes	The r is doubled if the -fer is still stressed	referring, referred, referral, beginning with	when the ending is added.	preferring, preferred, vowel letters to	The chang is added.	transferring, transferred words ending in –	The r is not doubled if the -fer is no longer	reference, referee, preference, fer	stressed.	transference
Here of the head
Use of the hyphen	Hyphens can be used to join a prefix to a root	co-ordinate, re-enter, word, especially if the prefix ends in a vowel letter and the root word also begins with one.	co-operate, co-own retter and the root word also begins with one.

Notes and guidance (non-statutory)

Teachers should continue to emphasis to pupils the relationships between sounds and letters, even when the relationships are unusual. Once root words are learnt in this way, longer words can be spelt correctly if the rules and guidance for adding prefixes and suffixes are also known. Many of the words in the list above can be used for practice in adding suffixes.

Understanding the history of words and relationships between them can also help with spelling.

Examples:

- Conscience and conscious are related to science: conscience is simply science with the prefix con- added. These words come from the Latin word scio meaning I know.
- The word desperate, meaning 'without hope', is often pronounced in English as desp'rate, but the -sper- part comes from the Latin spero, meaning 'I hope', in which the e was clearly sounded.
- Familiar is related to family, so the /ə/ sound in the first syllable of familiar is spelt as a.
